

KAITIAKI O ARA + DUKE OF EDINBURGH

Collaborating to advance youth development in Aotearoa

Kaitiaki o Ara/SADD is a peer education programme that empowers young Kiwis to deliver effective and sustainable road safety education within their schools and communities. Through the programme, young people are supported to plan, deliver and evaluate campaigns and activities for their peers, all while being provided with opportunities to develop essential life skills such as teamwork, facilitation, design, networking and more.

You can also use your SADD activities towards The Duke of Edinburgh's Award, gaining an internationally recognised Award in the process. Many of the activities and potential opportunities offered within the SADD programme align with aspects of The Duke of Edinburgh's Award.

Participants working on the Award can use SADD activities for their Award Sections outlined below:

Duke of Edinburgh's Award criteria

Kaitiaki o Ara opportunities

Voluntary Service - give back

The focus of this section is on giving back and helping other people through your activities

Supporting or leading your school SADD group
Planning or Supporting SADD campaigns
Participating in SADD activities
Participating in and supporting community partner projects and campaigns

Skills - find your genius

The focus is on your personal development in this area.

Learning and developing skills through the SADD Programme, for example
Public Speaking
Leadership
Campaign development

Gold Residential Project

Attend at least two SADD NLP events and conferences within a 12 month period totalling 5 days and 4 nights

For more information contact your local SADD Programme Delivery Lead or The Duke of Edinburgh's Award National Office info@dofehillary.org.nz

